

Faheen Allibhoy
Managing Director, JPM Development Finance Institution
JPMorgan Chase

Faheen Allibhoy joins JPMorgan Chase & Co. from the International Finance Corporation (IFC), the private sector of the World Bank, where she worked for 18 years. Faheen is a seasoned manager and investment professional with a deep understanding of international business, emerging markets and the development agenda. She has considerable sector expertise in infrastructure, renewable energy, industrials and private equity funds. At IFC, Faheen was responsible for setting strategy, business development, transaction execution and portfolio management. She also served as senior advisor to the CEO of IFC's Asset Management Company.

In her recent role as a Country Manager, Faheen was responsible for IFC's investments, advisory operations and client relationships in Senegal, Cape Verde, The Gambia, Guinea Bissau and Mauritania. She was a member of the Africa management team and managed the operations of the IFC Dakar Office, which has over 100 staff and is the hub for West and Central Africa. Prior to IFC, Faheen worked at Merrill Lynch in Investment Banking based in New York.

Faheen received her Bachelor of Arts in Economics from Wellesley College and her Masters in Business Administration from Harvard Business School.